THE NIGER BASIN WAR

Togo vs. Fulani, Iest

Kutoba had some great plans to complete the job he started and do away with the Fulani Emirate once and for all. But he would never get that chance. The tide had turned. An assassin posing as a tire salesman managed to get shish kebobs by King Kutoba's protectors the Renegade Twinkie Patrol. While that commotion was going on, the Mossi took the Mali garrison and went back to their home territory as a free and independent place. Kutoba announced that the invasion was still on and that heartened Togo's military might.

Bromo Roach who was earmarked for an unpleasant death had escaped the clutches of the Togonad invasionary force in Songhay. He made his way into the deep forests of Garou. The wild animals thought this to be an excuse to maul him and did so wounding the stupid insect-man. Bromo limped into Mali (returned to Fulani control) nursing many wounds. He swore that he'll never go back.

Kutoba and his forces exacted tribute from neutral Kurfei and then congregated in Kebbi meeting up with his brother Bomva and reinforcements. In 1352, the combined force now up to 10,000 heavy infantry, 48,500 light spearmen and 10,000 mercenaries attacked once again Songhay in force intending to do the same thing as before but with greater numbers to effect another passive siege. This time though, the Fulani were ready to play ball. Their 24,500 cavalry and 15,000 infantry made a brave stand in Songhay. Not used to facing opposition, morale in the Togonad camp sunk drastically. So bad it was that even the best weather conditions and the sun on their back, the Togonads were beaten by the smaller defending force. The Fulani Captain Muwakkil and all his cavalry broke easily the Togo advance and hacked down 26,000. The heathens ran off first to Kebbi and then to Nupe after Kebbi rebelled. The Fulani victory caused Dogamba, Kebbi, Asante and Niani to upraise. The Togo leader Kultkou had been captured in this Fulani victory. A year later, 38,500 worn out North African camelry arrived in Mali. They found out that they weren't really needed. Only the good nature of the barbers kept them from stringing up the Priasy Roach.

THE AKA MURRID EMIRATE OF PULANI

Mustafa II, Emir of the Fulani

DIPLOMACY: none

With Iest's help the Fulani regained Mali. Lack of governmental funds crunched down the infrastructure and the intelligence community. The army was kept intact though. Even though the populace had not been driven to Jihad fury, a great victory was achieved in Songhay's fields as the big nasty was administered to Togo's invasion. Some deserters of the Togo army had, after the battle, joined the Gaotians.

THE KINGDOM OF BORNU

Belgun Malik

DIPLOMACY: none

The Bornu were a non-factor in the Basin War. Mister Rock fell on Mister Bug.

THE SUPREMACY OF TOGO

Kutoba

DIPLOMACY: none

The sad defeat in Songhai pushed the Togo frontier back to pre-war boundaries. Kutoba and Bomva regrouped in Nupe with only 25,500 soldiers. General Kokou maintained the maintenance of the 100 river warships.

THE BANTU KINGS OF KONGO

Akashua, King of Ba-Congo

DIPLOMACY: Okoyo(ea), Yaounde(a), Owando(t), Sangbe(f), Ngoko(t), Mankim(a), Lunda(ea, then neutral), Igbo(fa)

The Ba Kings of Kongo stood neutral, not involving themselves in the Nigerian bloodfest. A postal road was built from Boma to Port Kachunk. The eldest son of Akashua's beloved, late, first son, Mambele was told that he won't be next in line for kingship. His uncle Ungani was declared the heir. So Mambele was given the Villi army, he marched on Boma and demanded he be given back his birthright. After some fears of dynastic warfare, Akashua caved and allowed Mambele to keep this status as the first in line to succeed. Kongo diplomats have gathered so many commitments from the lands that the governing apparatus is strained to rule it all. Due to distance Likasi, Etosha, Lunda, Mitumba and Nyuzu rebelled.

Ansarto, Ras Jemo, King of Aethiopia

DIPLOMACY: no effect

The Abyssinians expanded Artoli, Ganeti, Khartum and Kusti. The chancellor allowed for the construction of many coastal fleets, consisting of government financed transports. The legend of the golden hoard was confirmed by a traveler from Baghdad who viewed the acres of treasure in a cave under heavy guard.

THE AR ROCH SULTANATE OF IEST

DIPLOMACY: Al Hauts(f)

The Iest Sultan put his weight for the collapsing Fulani against the Togo heathens. A force of 25,000 heavy camel riders and 29,500 light humpers dived deep into the southern dunes. The Roach leaders of this expedition have faxed that their trip single handily toppled the evil Togo Empire and saved Islam. At home the road was extended from Surt in As Sidrah to Benghazi in Barqa. Every city got new paved streets and walls with artistic looking pots on them. Prince Abd Allah died of canary pox.

CIVIL STRIFE IN EUROPE!

It's Winding Down, Folks. Liguria vs. Neustria. Thaery vs. Lorraine.

In a secret deal that every one later found out about, the Saxons allowed the Neustrian army to live if Beyers took them to the Russian steppe to become a horde. What King Edward didn't guarantee was that the rebels would not pass unmolested if they went the wrong way. The Neustrians strayed from the agreed to pathway and cross the Rhone to enter Provence. There, they ran smack into a prepared Ligurian legion. The Ligurians had wisely called a mass conscription and pumped up their fighting force to mighty swell. All 294,000 horsemen and rakemea were ground to vulture chow by 88,000 Piedmonte knights, 75,000 Genoan cavalry, 80,000 Florentine halberdiers and 40,000 Bologna butchers. All the Neustrians died including Beyers. Only 14,500 Italians died smiting the European devils. Just like that the doom of Europe vaporized.

In the central part of the continent, the armies of Thaery overran Lorraine's homeland but weren't prepared for a siege.

THE NORMAN KINGDOM OF SAXONIA

Edward III, King of the Saxons and of the Normans, Count of Blois
DIPLOMACY: Poitou(fa), Vermandois(fa), Orleans(t), Randers(fa)

King Edward smelled like a rose after the deal was struck with the Neustrians. The rebels had broken their word and returned by way of the south Alps rather than north of the Alps. Edward didn't have to intercept them through because the Ligurians had the situation well in hand. Lord Derby was kicked out of Connaught. They would not listen to his diplomacy. Languedoc was restored to home rule.

Barcelona, Vienne, Hull, London and Valladolid expanded. All cities that remained true during the crisis.

THE NORMAN KINGDOM OF NEUSTRIA

The Neustrians didn't last long after they made peace. For whatever their purpose they have changed forever the balance of power in Europe.

THE ALMORA VID EMIRATE OF ANDALUSIA

Marwan II, Emir as Sevilla
DIPLOMACY: no effect

All the reserve manpower of the nation were mustered into the Andalusian army expanding their army to hopefully not confront the Neustrians. The Valencia and Malta garrisons were recalled to the Emir's command and he waited in Aragon, waiting for trouble. The good word was - It's no longer a problem. In the far south, along the Senegambian coast Shimad revolted to become an adventurer. Prince Malik tried to stop him but was killed in a duel. Marwan's position in the north had nixed expansion to the south. Cities were fortified. Field forts were built.

King Vandallo, Minister Sangelano and Duke L'Barnertul and their army beat the Neustrians in Provence in the autumn of 1351. In the Neustrian scattered camp was found the prize, a treasure of hundreds and thousands of golden imperials. A Spoleti diplomat visited Naples and Amalfi. Another checked up on Salentina. And another surveyed Lucano. Grain was shipped to Chalukya.

Merca: 30mc, 10ml

THE REPUBLIC OF STYRIA

Eugenus Von Zankel, Grand Doge of Wyst
DIPLOMACY: none

With the understanding that the Polish Prince Konrad of Krakow would be the next Doge of Wyst, the Republic gained the right to control the conquered regions of Thuringia, Franconia, Bavaria and Nordgau. But none of these would stick. All except Franconia rebelled. The Prince rode in to Wyst on a white horse leading a personal army of 15,000 knights and 5000 engineers, heralded by trumpets. The Papal legate William Grenstad watched the frontier for disturbances but there was none. Pigeons have nested in the ceiling of Eugenus' bedroom, occasionally dropping eggs on him while he slept.

THE NORDIK KINGDOM OF THAERY

Eibert, King of the Danes
DIPLOMACY: none

Prince Tobu, Generals Knats and Rujen and 115,000 soldiers left continental Saxonia and occupied Lorraine and found 150 foot tall walls surrounding Köln. THE UNITED DUCHIES OF LORRAINE

Albrecht
DIPLOMACY: none

The entire Lorraine army: 6000 cavalry, 3500 infantry, 25 watch towers were destroyed by the invading Danes. But the long walls of Köln kept out the bad guys. Albrecht avoided an assassination attempt.

THE GRAND PRINCIPALITY OF WARSAW

Casimir, Grand Prince of Warsaw
DIPLOMACY: Bohemia(aw, had to be pacified again)

King Volazarn IV with over 100,000 knights tried to diplomacize Meissen, a region friendly to Lorraine and failed to get any result. With all the troops he had he could have easily pacified the region but that would have been too obvious. Volazarn's tongue grew so tired that it fell off. Volazarn then died of stone tonsils. Now Casimir has to be the Grand Prince. He is proud that his brother will soon take over Styria. Yoseph and 8000 men were killed by the Muslim Dihaj horde when they tried to foment rebellion in Zaporozhie. Chernigov, Gomel, Danzig grew and were made more beautiful. The Teuton knights are guarding the treasury in Deanograd.

THE KINGDOM OF THE BALTS

Valerus, King of Baltica, Prince of Novgorod
DIPLOMACY: none

THE MONGOLOID INVASION OF INDIA

Mongols, Alanni, Lenolik, Ekgol vs. anyone unfortunate to dwell in India & beyond

Mongol Chief Holakshi evaded assassination attempts but his son Kunai and a general Volnai were hurt by flying knives. The Mongols grazed the grass in Dravidia and kept the Chalukya forces bottled up in Kollam. The Alanni split off and began their rampage through Chalukya's hinterlands. Buhnchun's horde forced tribute from Madurai and Vengi. Kalinga remained unsubdued because the Chalukya lord Manathu defended the port city, Gunter. Rastrakuta Orissa also survived the Alanni onslaught because Sakaugampa guarded Konorak. But the little Empire lost Pundra and Koesala. The Chalukya then lost Dahala and its city Tripuri and Pawar to the Alanni tribute makers. At the end of 1355, the 'smaller' horde attacked Lata but after realizing they could not fight anyone, they withdrew to Pawar.

The Lenolik were destroyed by the Alanni as they attacked Madurai in the summer of 1351. The Akgol bravely attacked Burma, badly defended by Mavinok. Mavinok withdrew his forces to hide inside Pagan. The Akgol looted the region some and headed off into the Shan Mountains. They raided Korat, traveled over Padishan, lost a few troops and attacked in the end, Nan Chao. The Vietnamese did not foresee the danger and allowed their region and the city of Taii to be partially plundered.

THE ALANNICHARG HOST

Romghak, Khajan of the Alans

DIPLOMACY: none

Dutchom the Bluedon was killed by Rastrakuta dagger throwers. Buhnchun didn't really miss him. He attacked Madurai and had to maul the Lenolik in the process. The 270,000 man horde disrupted the Chalukya and the Rastrakuta Empire forcing tribute from any region left to fend for themselves. The Alanni's trip went through many wildernesses raising troop support greatly. Buhnchun perished of hay fever and was succeeded by the strongest man - Romghak. A bull's eye was hung around his neck.

THE MONGOL KHANATE

DIPLOMACY: none

Dantidurga prepared for a siege or an assault but the twin hordes didn't want to play. One stayed behind to mock the Mandalam. The other split off to tear the Mandalam apart. Large amounts of grain was shipped from Byzantion and Liguria.

By 1355, they reached Nan Chao. Their 9500 cavalry wasn't enough to thoroughly loot the Vietnamese region or sack the city. They conducted another raid and got all they could from the area.

THE DAI VIET GUO

Pang Vanvoa, Wang Dai Viet

DIPLOMACY: none

In the ports of Thanglong, the Vietnamese shipwrights designed and built many high quality warships to counter a growing threat. He spoke as if to answer the shark tank guys:

"The Dai Viet Guo protests the piracy and torture practiced on his high seas by the Aquarium of Java. Failure to return our warships and make amends will result in an ever increasing naval arms race which will be to the detriment of both nations."

King Vanvoa stressed that he will have freedom of navigation by force, if necessary. So fixated he was to this high seas problem that he neglected to react against the pitty-squat Akgols who crossed the Padishan Mountains and ravaged Nan Chao. Shao's vacation in Tonkin was overly fun.

THE HIDDEN DRAGON OF CHEKIANG

Quan Ciadol, Celestial King of Chekiang

DIPLOMACY: none

Yixing and Chienkang's populations both expanded to 8 GPv. All over the nation small level agricultural and urban projects were built. He crossed into Liaotung and looted the neutral region and destroyed the already sacked city of Tating. Parhae was then attacked and looted; Anshan, ditto. Finally the 8500 cavalry of the Gurvan in Koguryo were encountered. Despite the distance of Touba's force from the rest of Ciao territory, they won a victory but whittling down the defenders. Then, Touba realized just how far away he was from home. So he took the army he had and the transports and formed his own kingdom in Sunto.
